Work and well-being back in harmony: bridge to a better balance

Pulso provides employees with an activating coaching process while maintaining focus on work situations and employer involvement. Pulso is renowned for its multifaceted approach to therapy and support, encompassing the psychological dimension, physical methods, and professional coaching. This holistic strategy is further enhanced with advice on nutrition, sleep, and other lifestyle factors.

1. Blended approach

Pulso's program begins with a standard psychosocial risk analysis. Following the survey, employees receive professional guidance from the reintegration coordinator and a multidisciplinary network. This team includes psychologists, job coaches, exercise specialists, and other experts. Together, they collaborate on action plans and integrate assessment instruments to facilitate a sustainable return to work.

2. Individual support

With a dedicated reintegration coordinator and personalized psychosocial risk analyses, Pulso ensures that employees receive customized information, advice, and bespoke direction to various therapists within the network. Additionally, a dedicated team of therapists provides exclusive online supervision.

3. Quality and evidence-based care

Pulso employs a variety of techniques and methodologies aligned with ISO 9001 standards. Their multidisciplinary team and certified reintegration coaches possess the expertise needed to enhance employee well-being.
